

HDMI CEC Pass through

There are many times when you want to just watch a program on TV without having to turn on the complete surround Sound system, especially programs such as the news or children's programs

The new Denon series AVR receivers have adapted the CEC (Consumer Electronics Control) feature to include HDMI CEC Pass through

Simply connect your set top box or disc player to your Denon AVR using a HDMI cable then connect your television also with a HDMI cable, select HDMI CEC and now you can play your set top box or disc player through your television without having to turn on your AVR.

When you want to enhance your surround sound experience simply turn on your Denon AVR and the sound to the television will turn off and your Denon AVR will take control.
